

SUPER AGENT: ROB

Creator Bios

About Nick, Rob, and Kevin

Nicholas Howard

nick@superagentrob.com

Genetically engineered in a lab, Nicholas Ryan Howard has been bred for one thing: love. And love is exactly what this Long Beach, CA native has dolloped into every drop of Super Agent: Rob.

Besides dolloping love, Nick also has also dolloped himself into the world of Interactive Media. He's worked in web production, DVD production, and other forms of clickable and non-linear media. But that's not to say that he has anything against linear media. I mean, if you're into that sort of thing...

Right now he lives in Los Angeles. And will dollop at the drop of a hat.

(more...)

Rob Kerkovich

rob@superagentrob.com

On Feb 19, 2037 Rob Kerkovich wrote: I write this to you from the future... Things here have been going well. We beat the Nazis. Again. Then I invented "text time travel". Let me think back now... I remember hailing from Newbury, Massachusetts. I remember graduating from USC's School of Theatre, having won a bunch of acting awards that are currently functioning as placemats. I remember being a struggling actor/writer in Los Angeles, performing in any play offered to me. I remember being in a sketch comedy troupe that performed throughout Los Angeles and worked with Norman Lear. But everything changed when <end transmission>

(more...)

Kevin Roache

kevin@superagentrob.com

Kevin Roache is a 2001 graduate of the USC School of Cinema-Television "Film Production" program. Hey, who isn't?

He hails from Medfield, Massachusetts.

If you look him up on IMDB.com, you will see that he has worked on such hit television shows as Six Feet Under and Monk as a "Sound Recordist." If you don't know what IMDB is, he also wrote and directed Jeremy Maguire, a powerful story about (as he puts it) "taking a chance."

Kevin also has a bit of an anger problem. He is dealing with it on his own time. He hopes you don't resent him for the time he got mad when you didn't put new toilet paper on the roll.